Key words: Marking of safety, protective and occupational footwear
Question: Some shoe manufacturers are preparing to substitute the marking of footwear stating the following problems: - on the smallest sized footwear the complete marking (ex. "EN ISO 2034x:2004 S3HROCI) seems to be too long. Is it possible to separate the marking putting the writing on two lines ? (i.e.) Or to simplify it, for example ISO 2034x:04 S3HROCI? What is intended with the term " adjacent to one another" : is it intended on the same line or could it be on two or more lines?
Solution: EN ISO 2034x:2004 S3HROCI This marking is acceptable. 2 or 3 lines can be used but they shall be linked together. In the standard, adjacent means next to (just after, just under,...)
